Dear Maxine Maxwell,

How are you today? I hope all is going well since I have seen you last. I would like to thank you for coming to the Fashion Institute of Technology on March 6, 2007. The "Echoes of the Past" was a huge success. I think the success rate was possible for many reasons, one reason being that you and your show is powerful and breathtaking.

With the intimate audience that was present you were able to bring emotions out of the students that the regular acts we bring to our school can not do. During the show students and faculty were giving tissues to one another to wipe away their tears. After the show, everyone was saying how powerful and memorable it was to watch you perform. One student said to me "Sometimes I need to realize how good I have it and how much I should not complain about the little things that get me down". Your performance, I feel it is one of the most diverse shows that presents us with an understanding of the history of where our fellow families have come from.

This was a phenomenal event. It was great when I saw it in Lancaster and it was still more amazing in New York City. It was a pleasure working with you. I wish you all the best.

Sincerely,

Anthony Marra
